Will Bolivia produce lithium batteries by 2025?

The Bolivian government has chosen a Chinese consortium led by battery giant Contemporary Amperex Technology to invest upward of $1 billion to develop untapped lithium deposits, with the ambitious goal of producing lithium batteries in the country by 2025. Bolivia has the largest lithium reserves in the world but little local means to develop them.

Can China develop EV batteries in Bolivia?

A giant Chinese battery company, Catl, has won a bidding process to develop Bolivia's huge lithium reserves. The ultra-light metal is used in electric vehicle (EV) batteries, production of which is expected to soar as fossil fuels are phased out.

Who is developing Bolivia's lithium reserves?

LA PAZ -Bolivia has chosen a consortium including Chinese battery giant CATL to help develop the South American country's huge, but largely untapped, reserves of lithium after a lengthy bidding process involving firms from the United States and Russia.

How much lithium is there in Bolivia?

With estimated 5,400,000 tonnes, Bolivia holds about half of the world's lithium reserves, most of those are located in the Salar de Uyuni. Despite the large reserve, there is currently no mining plant at the site, as the Bolivian government doesn't want to allow exploitation by foreign corporations.

Why is Bolivia unable to extract lithium?

Technical hurdles and a lack of infrastructure have long delayed the extraction of lithium in Bolivia, whose reserves are estimated at 21m tonnes. Mr Arce said Bolivia was still negotiating with other foreign companies for potential partnerships.

What is a 'historic' industrialisation of lithium in Bolivia?

The ultra-light metal is used in electric vehicle (EV) batteries, production of which is expected to soar as fossil fuels are phased out. Bolivian President Luis Arce said the Catl-led consortium was launching the 'historic' industrialisation of lithium in Bolivia. More than $1bn (£807m) will be invested in the project's first phase, he said.
